In appreciation of her exceptional contribution to the cause of education and in recognition of the long and praiseworthy service she gave to Helena High school, we dedicate this page to Miss Eva LaReau. Graduating from Helena High school in 1900, Miss LaReau returned in 1909 as a teacher, spending her lifetime in the service of her alma mater.

Her students owe much to her unswerving fidelity to the highest standards of proficiency in her subject, and to her constant enrichment of her courses through extensive travels in Europe, Asia and South America.

"Shadows, and winds that spill
Dew, and the tune of the whippoorwill,
And the white moon,
These be the watchers still
Over her stone."

EVA LAREAU

In Memoriam

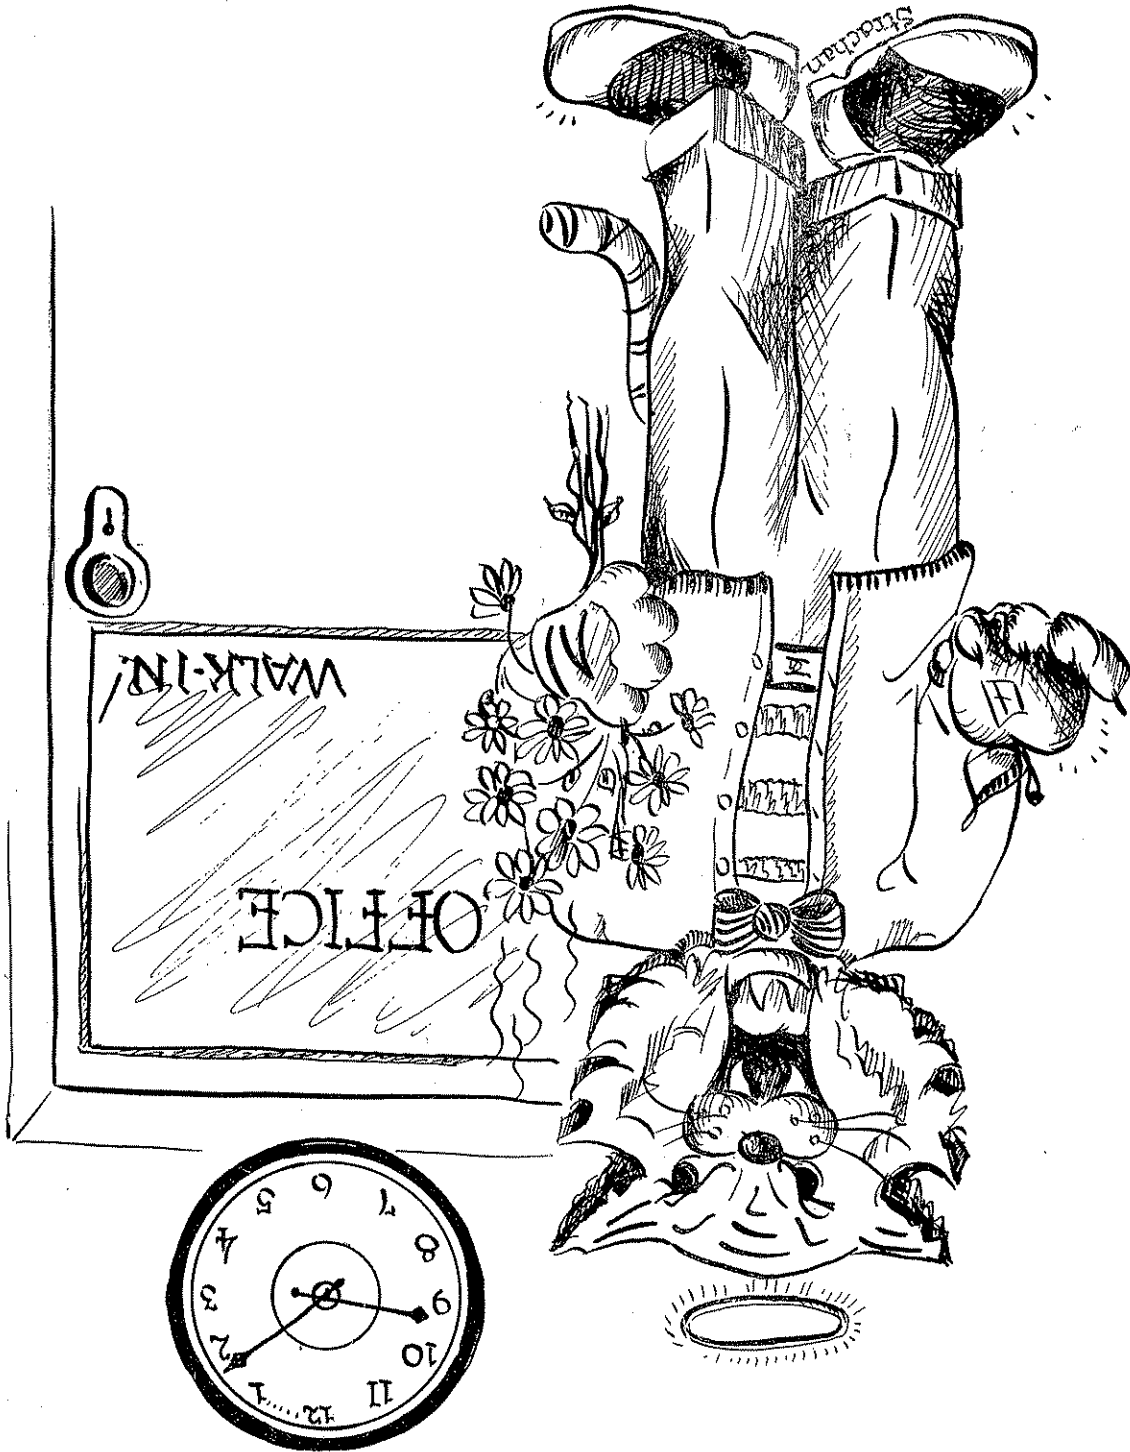

The dream of probably every girl in Helena High is to become Queen Vigilante. To sweet and lovely Shirley Williams this dream became a reality last fall when the student body elected her to reign over Helena High for one year. We are happy to have her loveliness grace this page.

Honor Roll

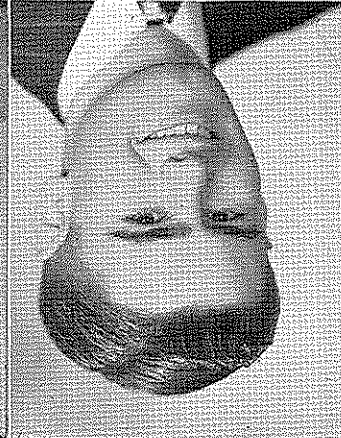

Valedictorian
Robert Rattery

Each Wednesday noon a boy from the senior class attends the meeting of Rotary International. The Student Body President and Senior Class President attended meetings in October and November and the senior boys elected representatives for the six remaining months.

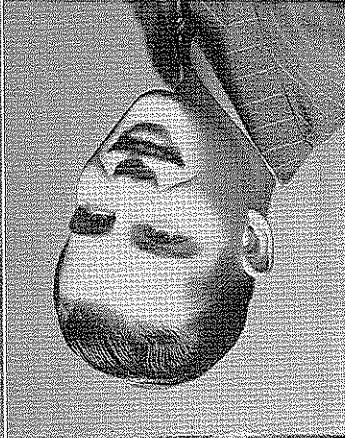

In the spring, Rotarians selected by lot one of the boys to be a delegate to their state convention. Ed Dunn was the lucky boy.

Mr. John Ehlers and Mr. Harold Winfield (Fuzz) who own a men's haberdashery on a little side street just off 45th, were sitting at the bar alone, drinking pink lemonade.

Lois Nelson, owner of the "Better Biscuits for Bright Babies" was just locking up for the night as we passed the factory.

We had intended to stop at a few of the other night spots but it was late and we returned to our hotel where the night watchman, Charles Justice, let us in, since Willbur locks the doors at 11:55 P. M.

The February days were rather chilly, so we took a short jaunt down to Palm Springs, Fla., as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. (Jo Ann Judd) Jack Ratchey '47, and basked in the warm gulf coast sunshine.

Marilyn Merrill, who had just flown in from Arizona with us, was there to buy some pure bred stallions for her dude ranch.

We walked through the wide streets of Palm Springs and were amazed to see so many of our old classmates who had "flown south."

We saw Joseph Pastelak opening his outdoor cafe which overlooks the ocean. John McHugh was in a hurry to get down to the beach, where he is a life guard with Pat Leary so we took our swim suits and went along.

There, we saw Doris Miner doing aquatic stunts and Carol Merz, who is internationally famous for her skill in diving.

Betty McMaster, Jo Bonner and Phyllis Hays were lying in the sun, playing gin rummy, but they didn't recognize us in our dark glasses.

Walter Murrill (Howdy), manager for prize fighter Bob Neill, was having "Sluager" run up and down the boardwalk of Atlantic City to get in condition for his next bout.

Golden Gloves Tom Samson, however, has a manager, Joe Jensen, who makes him run down to the corner every day.

Barbara Johnson, Captain of the Detroit Girls' Basketball team was in Racey's department store buying new equipment for her faithful five, who are: Ethel La Rock, Avalon Mayer, Josephine Matice, Sarah Hames, and Constance Adams. The girls have done very well this season in spite of the cold weather.

Jerry Taylor and Dick Porte, presidents of Hale and Varvard Universities respectively, were seen at the Illinois state fair where Jerry won the hog-calling contest and Dick took the prize for flag-pole sitting.

Janet Kercher, accompanist for Ellen Lutey who sings Saturday afternoons at the Longview Ladies' Luncheon for Lunatics, told us that some of them really are. (I might have known that lampshade was no hat, even if it did have a veil.)

At Joe Martello's skiing resort on Mt. Vesuvius, we watched Floyd Sutton and Jim Smigaj come through the slalom at breath-taking speed.

Maynard Sternberg, skiing instructor was teaching George Berg and Charles Pare to turn around. (Quite a feat, I understand!)

Myrtle Duncan was stretched out in front of the 10-foot five-place, resting after a morning of exhilarating skiing with Kathryn McClean.

Elizabeth Kuehn was making hot coffee for George Magnuson and Jacob Mehelich who were due in from a cross country ski-run.

It requires a lot of energetic stompin' to keep warm up in them thar hills, so we didn't stay for long. Our next stop was in Colorado, where we toured the offices of the Denver Post, finding the Editor, Nathalie McGregor hard at work and Thomas Lull, the type setter, a trifle impatient because the copy had not yet been prepared by Paul Lehman.

As we left the newspaper building we passed the Dutch Donut shop owned by Wallace Boone and managed by Ethel Hughes. The smell of fresh donuts made us hungry and we stopped for a short snack at Smith's Smorgasbord which is run by Pauline Smith with the assistance of Norma Sandru.

Joyce Smith, head nurse at Betstie's Dog Haven, revealed to us that the number of people who have been biting dogs is rapidly increasing, and they have several poor canines who are suffering from anthropophobia.

Denver is an interesting city as Bob Williams, the Chief of Police, will no doubt tell you. For ten years Bob directed traffic at the corner of Pike and Peak but now Jack Carpenter has that worthy position.

One of the unique things about Denver is their system of outdoor advertising which is under the direction of Jerry Willlett. Walter Wallace does free lance drawing on the outdoor signs throughout the city. Their original themes are like the following sponsored by Norma Perhay, "Perhay's Peppy Pop is Preferred by People who are Particular."

Clinton Kreiman was putting on an exhibition of fancy bowling on the outdoor bowling green for the old ladies visiting from Canada, when Kenneth Larson was struck by a stray ten-pin and was rushed to the Emergency Hospital where Cato Butler, chief surgeon and Peg Macdonald, assistant chief, operated immediately. The anesthetic was administered by interne Charles Crawford who is going to Russia in July to study.

Wisconsin, the Badger state, proved to be equally interesting and there we saw a huge, white dairy farm owned and operated by Royce Armstrong. He told us an interesting anecdote about how one nearby town got its Indian name. "It seems an Indian squaw had her fourth baby boy, and the chief ran out yelling to the tribe, "She boy again!" the result? Sheboygan, Wis."

$25,000 Sweepstakes. Doris mumbled between gasps of excitement, that she would naturally donate half of the money to the Teacher's Retirement Fund.

A taxi driven by Frank Jester, who owns the Charreuse Cab Company, took us to the Brown Derby owned by Don Spaulding and his songstress wife, peppy Mary Lou Harker, where we interviewed Colleen Tomcheck, who is awaiting news of her divorce from Bill Wright, wealthy cattle rancher.

Hazel Yates, hostess, showed us to a table situated near Pauline Zorich, Margaret Van Diest and Eva White, secretaries employed by Robert Wilmer, textiles executive.

Velma Mae Williams played several selections on the organ console at a tea given in our honor by Pat Gullbault, now Mrs. James Duffy, who just completed an expansion bridge from Oakland to Berkeley.

Daisie Fortune, who now is an insurance saleslady for the California branch of Western Life, was recently seen at a public appearance to promote a research fund for the disease (just discovered) which is marring so many young people's chances in the world, "cephalgia." 5.

The Stan Olson Equipment Company is sponsoring a national essay contest on "Why Honest Olson's Ore-diggers Dig Deepest." Merton Zuelke, song writer, is one contestant that we know of is competing against Joyce Slinger, (Mrs. Merton Liston); Joyce has a good chance of winning, as she has won 11 essay contests this year with a prize money total of $1500.

Bob Kokoruda, who owns Seattle's largest fish cannery, showed us the markets, warehouses, steamship companies and bums which cover the waterfront, but as the tide was coming in, and a strong wind was blowing, the odor made us decide to take ourselves elsewhere immediately.

We spent an enjoyable afternoon at Woodlawn Park, where we saw Jerry Hunter, lion tamer, put his big cats through their paces. Charles Cramer, monkey trainer and Roy Noel, elephant keeper, had a clever routine worked up, but it was interrupted by a terrified scream from Doris Strachan, illustrator for the Ladies Home Companion.

It seems a giraffe stuck its neck over the fence while Doris was watching the elephant act, and ate her new spring hat, bird-cage and all.

Lloyd Mergenthaler's orchestra is appearing nightly at the Spanish Ballroom of The Olympic Hotel, featuring golden-voiced Marjorie Soll as their lovely vocalist. His baritone player, Jack Shrike Virag, who has a perfect batting average for the season.

We attended Jack Ricker's opening night at Meany Hall, where his concert piano thrilled thousands of spectators, and Harvey Steele, music critic, went backstage after the performance to compliment Jack on his wonderful progress.

Billie Lee Poor, head of the Seattle public library, (downtown branch), showed us through the five floors of the building with pride. One section, devoted entirely to school textbooks and references, was crowded with students eagerly doing outside work for their classes over the week-end. 6.

Maxine Petteerson owns a distinguished dress shop on Fifth Avenue, which features styles created exclusively by Eva Stewart. Jean Pullin, assistant buyer for the jewelry store, "The Black Star", recently purchased the Hope Diamond from Barbara and Colleen Steinbach, dude ranch owners, for $200,000,000. The girls were reluctant to part with it for its sentimental value, but they needed a little extra cash.

Robert Crawford, governor of Oregon, called a special session of the state legislature to see if something could be done to keep the blackbirds out of the peaches during December.

Arlene Fredrick, attorney general, proposed a plan which is now being considered by the House of Representatives. She feels that all people in Oregon who keep goats, raise cabbages, and pick nuts, should pay a special tax to the state, who provides the spray each year for the peach trees. 7.

Betty May Anderson, champion water skier, put on an exhibition at Seaside, where one of her main stunts is doing the splits while standing on her hands on the shoulders of her partner, Albert Rose.

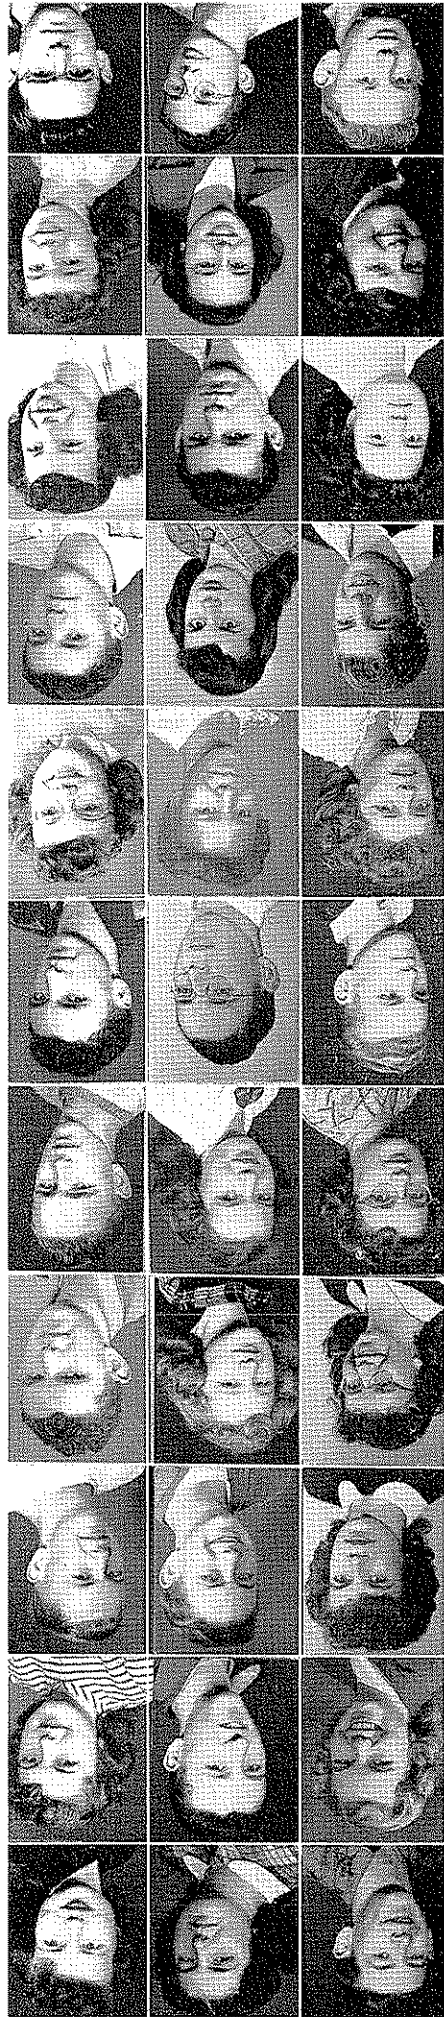

Albert Robertson, hairstylist at the DeCurticle salon, gave Richard Gross a radio-active permanent yesterday, which has all the girls simply blue with envy. 8.

Having completed our amazing journey, the spirits bid us adieu with this last admonition "Stray not from the fold, little lambs, for mother went mad on Monday."

5. Barbara Norfleet, M.D., has been doing research work on the social aspects of misogynists, too. 6. Webster's definition of a book worm: "any of various kinds of insect larvae which injure books." 7. Which I think is a just and fair bargain. 8. Now poor Richard has no hair at all. In fact, now, no Richard.
